

UPCOMING EVENT

Morton L. Mandel Public Lecture

Arms Trafficking: Its Past,
Present, and Future

November 20, 2019 | 7:00 p.m. | Berkeley, CA

The Berkeley Program Committee invites you and a guest to join historian Brian DeLay as he discusses the history of the arms trade, which he argues reaches much farther back than the post-World War II military-industrial complex, and has entangled state and market since George Washington's day.

After DeLay's presentation, Priya Satia, Daniel Sargent, and Ron Hassner will respond and join a conversation moderated by David Hollinger. They will discuss the importance of studying the history of arms trade for understanding international relations, the history of capitalism and state making, and power relations between the United States and the rest of the world.

Brian DeLay

Associate Professor, Department of History,
University of California, Berkeley

DeLay with musket

Ron Hassner

Chancellor's Professor of Political Science and Helen Diller Family Chair in Israel Studies, Charles and Louise Travers Department of Political Science, University of California,
Berkeley

David Hollinger

Preston Hotchkis Professor Emeritus,
Department of History, University of California, Berkeley

Priya Satia

Professor of British History; Raymond
A. Spruance Professor of International History, Department of History, University of California,
Berkeley

Daniel Sargent

Associate Professor, Department of History, University of California,
Berkeley

Event Date: Wednesday, November 20, 2019

Please register to attend by November 6, 2019.

Register

More Information

University of California, Berkeley
Faculty Club, Great Hall
Minor Lane, Berkeley, CA

7:00 p.m. Program
Reception to follow

For questions, contact Tinbite Gadsden, Events Coordinator:
617-576-5083; mevents@amacad.org

