

SUMMER INSTITUTES AT UC BERKELEY

Building Academic Literacy Through History

An Institute for 4th-12th Grade Teachers

JULY 13-17, 2009

What:

This is the 8th year we have offered this institute. Each year, through our teachers' classroom inquiries we've added to our understanding, helping all history students be better readers, writers, and thinkers. In this five day institute, we will focus on discipline-specific literacy strategies designed to increase student reading, writing, and critical thinking skills while teaching the California Historical-Social Science Content Standards. Local teachers will lead workshops with classroom-tested model lessons. Teachers will create their own standard-based lesson integrating the literacy strategies learned at the institute.

Teaching American History for All

An Institute for 5th, 8th and 11th Grade Teachers of U.S. History/English-Language Arts
AUGUST 10-14, 2009 (this institute will be held in Concord, CA)

What:

This institute focuses on the theme of Changing Definitions of Citizenship in the U.S. for 5th, 8th, and 11th grade teachers of U.S. History/English-Language Arts. Participants will increase their content knowledge in U.S. History and learn how to incorporate reading, writing, and thinking strategies into standards-based classroom planning. The institute includes daily professor lectures followed by models of teacher-created lessons tying lecture topics into the standards-based citizenship theme and integrating reading and writing strategies in their own curriculum. Teachers will receive standards-based, grade-specific model lessons and develop lessons incorporating academic literacy strategies and primary and secondary sources.
